Remarketing

This website uses third-party remarketing services, such as Google AdWords, to advertise our products and services on other websites to previous visitors of our website. Third-party remarketing services including Google will use cookies and pixel tags (action tags) on your web browser to collect non-identifiable information about your visits and interaction with our website and display advertisements based on these past visits. The advertisements could be in the form of an advertisement on a Google search results page, a site in the Google Display Network, a banner or link. These advertisements on third-party websites allow us to track responses to our ads. You can set preferences for how Google advertises to you using the Google Ad Settings page or opt out of a third-party vendor's use of cookies by visiting the Network Advertising Initiative opt-out page. If you want, you can opt out of interest-based advertising entirely by changing your cookie settings or permanently using a browser plugin.

Cookies are small files containing strings of text stored on your computer, mobile or other device. We use cookies to authenticate you as a user when you log in, to track your session, to deliver content specific to your preferences and interests, and to provide other functions.

We may use session cookies or persistent cookies. Session cookies are temporary and are deleted after you close your web browser. Session cookies do not collect personal information from your computer, mobile or other device. Among other uses, session cookies allow us to deliver content specific to your interests and to improve website navigation. We use persistent cookies for customer protection, as part of our authentication technology. Persistent cookies assist in verifying the identity of a customer who is attempting to log in to an account.

Web beacons are objects embedded into web pages that allow a website to count users and determine how long users view web pages. We use web beacons for website traffic reporting, unique visitor counts, auditing and reporting, personalization, and other functions.

A web beacon embeds a small transparent gif image in a web page or email used to track when the web page or email has been viewed. A similar device may be used where a product, service or functionality sends data to a server when a set of user-initiated events occur, such as clicking a button on the website or in an email. This is similar to a cookie — it tracks your visit, and the data is only read by the server that receives the data. However, it differs because it is not browser-based, may not function as an ID card and doesn't store any data on your computer.

Log file information is automatically reported by your browser each time you access this website. When you access this website, our servers may automatically record certain log file information. These server logs may include Personal Information such as your web request, Internet Protocol ("IP") address, browser type, browser language, operating system, platform type, the state or country from which you accessed the website, software and hardware attributes (including Device ID), referring/exit pages and URLs, number of clicks and how you interact with links on the website, domain names, landing pages, pages viewed and the order of those pages, the date and time you visited the website and uploaded or posted content, error logs, files you downloaded, and other such information. We use this information to enhance the functionality of this website and to make your access more convenient, secure and efficient. We may also use this information to develop group profiles of website visitors, to assist with systems administration, to resolve problems and to prevent fraud.

Location information is general location information (e.g., IP address, city/state and or ZIP code associated with an IP address) that we automatically collect from your computer or mobile device. We use this information to enhance your experience of using this website.

Most internet browsers are set up to accept cookies automatically. You may stop your browser from accepting cookies or web beacons, or providing location information. The Help portion of your browser should explain how to configure your browser's settings. Your browser may have add-ons that may help you block web beacons. You may have limited functionality if you block cookies or web beacons set by this website. Please note that if you disable such features, you may not be able to access or receive some or all of the services, content, features and/or products made available via this website.

If you do disable such features, please note that we are unable to respond to Do Not Track signals or similar tools and settings at this time due to the limits of current internet technology, standards and solutions.

information, and for controlling access to your email communications from us, at all times. Do not share your password with anyone and do limit access to your computer or other devices by signing off after you have finished accessing your account.

For information about how to protect yourself against identity theft, please refer to the Federal Trade Commission's website at www.ftc.gov and search for the latest identity theft and data security resources.

Retaining Your Personal Information

Following termination or deactivation of your account or any other actions we may take, we may retain your profile information for an additional period for backup, archival or audit purposes. In certain circumstances, we are required by federal and state regulations to store various information. In order to comply with those requirements, we may be unable to delete your Personal Information from our systems until the expiration of the applicable period. This is known as retaining information. Afterward, your Personal Information will be deleted or destroyed in accordance with our policies for information security and privacy that comply with applicable law.
